

MALOCK, Jas. - Jas. Malock, son of E.L. Malock of Fayetteville, was killed last week while braking on the Iron Mountain road. [Rogers Democrat 11/14/01]

MARKWELL - (Probate Court) Wm. F. Womack, guardian of Wm. Markwell, a minor, 4th annual settlement which was approved by the court. Said guardian filed final settlement which was continued for publication. [Benton County Democrat 7/25/01]

MARTIN, L.O. - Dr. L.O. Martin, one of the early pioneer settlers of Benton county, died on May 9 at Williams, Arizona at the age of 77 years. He was an uncle of Mrs. J.H. Stone of this city. Dr. Martin resided on the place where Dr. Curry now lives, in the south part of town. He has been in Arizona however for almost 25 years. [Rogers Democrat 5/30/01]

MASON, Luke - (from Centerton) The sad news reaches us of Luke Mason being drowned in Oregon. He has been in the "far West" some time and the news of his death was very much unexpected to his relatives and friends. The sorrowing ones have the sympathy of all who know them. [Benton County Democrat 8/8/01]

MAXWELL, Emma - Miss Emma Maxwell died at her home three miles east of town last Friday and was buried Saturday. She was a daughter of the late M.B. Maxwell who was county surveyor of Benton County for 20 years. The deceased was a most estimable young lady and leaves many relatives and friends to mourn her death. We expect an extended notice by her pastor in next issue. [Benton County Democrat 9/12/01]

Died Sept. 7th, 1901 at her home two and one-half miles east of Bentonville, Emma Maxwell in the 26th year of her age. The deceased was born in Benton county September 25, 1875. Her whole life, except a few months, was spent in our midst and in the immediate community where she was born. About 15 years ago she accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as her personal Savior and united with the C.P. church. At the time of her death she was a member of the Woods congregation. Several years ago her health failed and in spite of all that medical aid and anxious loving friends could do, the disease preyed unceasingly upon her constitution until its final and fatal work was accomplished. Emma was a bright, cheerful and happy girl and was dearly loved by all her associates and acquaintances, and was highly esteemed by the church; her influence was sweet and salutary upon all who came under it and her taking away in the midst of a life so promising and useful has left us overwhelmed in sorrow. Her remains were buried in Mt. Eden cemetery by the side of loved ones gone before. P. Carnahan, pastor. [Benton County Democrat 9/19/01]

MAXWELL, Margaret Jennie KELLEY Shelton Cowan Simmons - Mrs. O.D. Maxwell died at her home in this city on Monday, June 17th, 1901 at 9:15 o'clock a.m., aged 64 years. Mrs. Maxwell was afflicted for several years and for the past year had been unable to care for herself. As the end drew near her sufferings increased and she was never free from pain. Death came to her not as a grim monster but rather as a friend, for she was ready to go. The funeral service, conducted by Rev. Peter Carnahan Tuesday morning, was largely attended by friends and acquaintances. Interment at the Odd Fellows cemetery followed immediately after the service. [Benton County Democrat 6/20/01]

Died June 17th, at home, Bentonville, Ark., Margaret Jennie Maxwell (nee Kelley) in the 64th year of her age. The deceased was born in Marion county, Tenn. Feb. 11th, 1837. When about 17 years of age she professed faith in Christ as her personal Savior and united with the C.P. Church. She was first married to Henry Shelton of Tenn. in 1857. Soon after the Civil War Mr. Shelton died; and about the year 1870 she was married to W.H. Cowan of Tenn. and soon thereafter they came to Benton county, Ark. This relation continued but a few years when Mr. Cowan died. About the year 1880 she was married to J.W. Simmons of Benton county, Ark., who several years after also died. August 1886 she was married to O.D. Maxwell of Bentonville. To each of these she was a faithful and loving wife. For more than forty years of her life she was afflicted and during her last years a great sufferer. Her funeral was attended by her many friends. Her remains were buried in the Odd Fellows cemetery on the family lot of her former husband, J.W. Simmons. To her husband, Bro. O.D. Maxwell, the whole community extends their condolence and sincere Christian sympathy. [Benton County Democrat 6/27/01]

MAY, Mrs. John (PATTON) - (from Pond) J.D. Patton is still poorly, though apparently improving some. Jim is an excellent neighbor and a good quiet citizen and, should he depart, would be missed by many friends. He is the only living member of his mother's family, his last sister, Mrs. John May, having died recently. [Benton County Democrat 6/27/01]

MAYO, Martha J. WOMACK - Martha J. Mayo, wife of M.E. Mayo who lives at Center Point, died on Thursday, Dec. 27th, at 3 p.m. Her remains were interred in Center Point graveyard on Friday afternoon, Dec. 28th, 1900, Elder Blevins officiating at the services. Mrs. Mayo was born July 30th, 1861 and was the youngest daughter of Richard Womack who was one of the oldest settlers of Benton County. She was a member of the M.E. Church, South, having joined the church at Center Point when she was a child. She leaves a husband and nine children besides a large number of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. [Benton County Democrat 1/3/01]

MAYO, Mrs. Ed - Wm. Mayo was called to Centerton last Thursday by the illness and death of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ed Mayo, of that place. The bereaved family have our heartfelt sympathy. [Rogers Democrat 1/3/01]

MEEKER - (Probate Court) Ina M. Mays, guardian and curator of estate of Georgia E. Meeker, a minor, report approved and guardian discharged upon filing receipts. [Benton County Democrat 7/25/01]
